DEATH SEEKING BIG STAKE.

Shot, with His Finger on His Revolver Trigger, by the Un-12 erring Aim of Watchman Harry Tyler.

Four Cracksmen Were Trying to Rob the Deep River Savings Bank, Which Has Deposits of $1,343,213.

This Was the Connecticut Bank Which Burglars Hope and Coakley Tried to Rob in February, 1878.

Middletown, Conn., Dec. 13.-"Killed while trying to break into a bank. Justifinble homicide."

This epitaph, made by a Coroner's jury here to-day, may be the only one that is ever written for a burglar, the top of whose head was blown off this morning by Harry 1 Tyler, night watchman of the Deep River Savings Bank, while the fellow was trying to break into that institution.

The watchman, who is a good shot, was inside the bank. A chilly mist from the river made it a good night for cracksmen. Tyler heard nothing until there was a noise close to the rear window, and then he saw four men grouped outside, one of whom was trying to open it.

The fellow saw Tyler at the same mo ment and drew his revolver. The watchman and a Winchester repeater, the magazine of which was full of shells, each carrying nine buckshot. He raised it and fired. The man with the pistol fell and the other three took to their heels.

Pistol in Dead Man's Hand, The gound of the shot aroused neighbors. They found the burglar dead in his tracks. There was a revolver in his right hand. In his tracks. There was a revolver in his right hand. In his pockets were found six drills, a fuse for exploding powder of dynamite, a large piece of soap, evidently for stopping up hotes drilled in a safe, and $1.20 in money. The dead burglar has a dark complexion, dark hair and mustache and a smooth face. His build is fine, and he is well dressed. He wore an outing shirt and good underwear, and his hands are soft and well shaped.

Mr. Schroeder's playing is delightful. The work which Dvornk planned for him, and to which he added as co-composet, is most exacting, but Mr. Schroeder put into its interpretation striking facility of exceution, grace, force and tenderness.

The work of the orchestra, under the leadership of Wilhelm Gericke, was thoroughly satisfying and brilliant, the full orchestral numbers including three numbers from the "Romeo and Juliet" suite of Hector Berlloz.

London, Dec. 13.—De Wolf Hopper produced "The Charletan" under the name of "The Mystical Miss" to night at the Com? edy Thentre, and scored a remarkable hit, both for himself, the company and Sousa's opera. The appiause frequently stopped the performance. The pit and galleries howled with delight. Hopper was obliged in the middle of the second act, after one of his topical songs, to make a little specch asking the audience to permit the opera to proceed. The company was caled before the curtain three times at the close of the piece and another speech was demanded from Hopper a quarter of a century and has not found its equal. Acker, Marrall & Condit sell it.
